B Objectives

1. What is the main purpose for this course?

The purpose of this writing course is to develop level 5 students' writing skills through the writing process to create focused, fully developed and well-organized essays. The course focuses on writing for different purposes, sentence variety and emerging mastery of mechanics in the context of essays. Essays will incorporate outside sources as well as personal experience. Students will gain practice writing on more sophisticated formal essays in different academic modes (i.e. argumentative, classification essays and reaction essays) as well as more practice revising and editing their own and others' writing. Students will learn more about the various aspects of stylistics that are associated with the assigned rhetorical modes.

2. Briefly describe any plans for developing and improving the course that are being implemented. (e.g. increased use of IT or web based reference material, changes in content as a result of new research in the field)

1. Adopting more web-based materials
2. Having the course more engaging by taking the students every now and then to a different setting, for example, the library
3. Increasing in-class / take-home reading materials that show samples of the numerous rhetorical modes.

C. Course Description (Note: General description in the form used in Bulletin or handbook)

Course Description:

This two-hour credit writing course introduces level 5 students to a higher level of academic writing and topics including summarizing, paraphrasing, developing support for opinion, and documenting sources. The units in the course will help students expand and support points of view at some length with subsidiary points, reasons, and relevant examples.

The course aims at familiarizing students with salient characteristics of argumentative essays in terms of their organization, counter-argument, concessions, refutation, the use of collocations associated with argumentative vocabulary, addition and contrast connectors, adverbial, and noun clauses. It also reviews the main features of classification essays in terms of their organization, establishing order of importance, and the use of gerunds and infinitives. Students will learn about the main features of reaction essays; mainly their organization, the literary present and the use of passive.
